A Chevrolet was proceeding west against the sign, and likely could not see, and a Ford with British Columbia license was coming north. A coupe of spikes in the front wheel of the Ford were broken and the bumper on the Chev. bent some. Inasmuch as the Chev. had the right of way and the damage was slight, it was decided not to take any action in the matter but merely let it drop.

Wilford Palmer Is Killed In Very Unusual Accident

Raymond and district was shocked Friday evening and Saturday morning of last week when news began to spread of the almost instant death of Wilford Palmer, aged 49 years, one of Raymond's business men and one of the most popular figures on Broadway.

Friday he had gone to Lethbridge on business and had made several calls having his business pretty well wound up, when in one of the beer rooms he met some strangers with whom he had a glass or two of beer, and then went to supper with them. About seven o'clock they decided to go home, and "Wif" as everyone knew him, in his characteristic hospitable manner offered to take them to their homes in North Lethbridge.

Driving along 8th Ave. North near 13th Street where the street car turns and starts back to the centre of the city Wif apparently was some how confused by the bright street car lights, or became confused, and his truck crashed head on into the street car which at the time of the collision was practically stopped. The motorist jumped out of the car and was around where the deceased was lying on the track and could find no trace of life in the body. The other three men jumped, just before the crash and ran to their homes, for what reason no one knows, but none of them stayed at the scene of the accident nor were they heard of until some time after the crash.

The coroner's jury after going over all of the evidence brought in a verdict of accidental death, caused by the collision with the street car which broke the neck of the deceased. The conductor of the street car was absolved from any blame, as he had done all he could to avoid the accident.

A large number of witnesses were heard in the two days that the inquest was under way, it requiring Monday and Tuesday afternoon's talk to reach a decision and hear all of the witnesses.

Deceased had been in the Insurance business here for a long time, and also bought hides, furs, horseshair etc. and with Roscoe Larson was joint proprietor of the Raymond Billiard Parlor. Well known for his generosity and willingness to help the unfortunate he will be missed by hundreds. As a business man honorable in all his dealings he made friends with Japanese, English and all other nationalities who made up his clientele in business, and will be missed by all. He was a man who supported every worthy enterprise, and was a live member of the Board of Trade and all other organizations that were working for the advancement and progress of the town and district.

FUNERAL SERVICES

Funeral services over the remains of Wilford Palmer were held in the 2nd Ward Hall on Wednesday afternoon at 2 p.m. with Bishop James H. Walker in charge. The large hall was filled, every seat being taken and about 500 people in attendance, which fact alone was a distinct tribute to the deceased, who came to a most untimely end.

The singing was in charge of C. E. Strong, the songs being "Though Deepening Trials," "When the Mists Have Cleared Away," and the chorus of "I Know That My Redeemer Lives." Mrs. Blanche Seoville singing the solo "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" by Mrs. E. A. Watson, and "Thy Will Be Done" by T. K. Roberts.

The opening prayer was offered by Mrs. H. S. Allen and the benediction by Pres. O. H. Snow, the grave at the cemetery being dedicated by Geo. W. Green.

The first speaker was L. D. King who referred to his long acquaintance with the deceased, and stated that he was a man widely known and greatly appreciated by all who knew him. While Wilford was not much of a church goer, his works were the works of a true Christian and he lived a life of service to others and even lost his life helping others. Was one of the few men who had made friends and gained the respect of all classes, and a man who was particularly attentive to the aged, infirm and unfortunate. True, he had his imperfections, but all of us have, and his good deeds would overbalance his shortcomings.

H. Ostlund, K.C., of Lethbridge spoke next and said he felt that the spirit of Wilford Palmer's father was present and was pleased and happy to know that the community held in such high respect his son, who had been called away under trying and extraordinary circumstances. The speaker had known the Palmer family all his life, and had the greatest respect for them. Deceased was born

"Made in Alberta" Windows Are Attractive

Raymond's business houses have responded almost 100 per cent. to the request of the Women's Institute in sponsoring a Made-in-Alberta week, and this week store windows all up and down the street are displaying Alberta Made goods. This is a revelation to many, and was to your truly, to see the splendid and ever growing array of Alberta products and shows that we along with the other Canadian provinces are getting into the manufacturing game.

We will not be able to mention every article, but the Cash Meat Market had a window of Packing Plant products from Burns and Swift, the Merc. had one window with a display of Alberta furniture another with Alberta table and cooking products such as butter, sugar, bacon, and a hundred and one other items we could not list then one other with Alberta made leather coats and men's and boy's trousers and ladies dresses. Going on down the street Stone's had a window of Alberta made groceries, prominent in the display being Alberta Sugar, Cardston Butter and many others.

Then in the old Palace Confectionery stand the W. I. have an elaborate exhibit of Alberta products, featuring several hundred articles, and among this array the newspapers of Alberta about eight or more dailies and Mags. lines etc. Also in one window here the Crystal Dairy of Lethbridge have a very novel and educational display of their products and various brands of Ice Cream, Butter, etc. On down the street, the Broadway has one window full of G.W.G. Overalls, Shirts and Pants, and another one of Caldwell's Hardware, both Alberta made products, and probably other windows that have as far escaped our notice, and if so, we apologise to the ones arranging them.

These displays cannot help but give us a greater appreciation of Alberta and her progress, and everyone should be on hand Friday night to help eat the Alberta made Dinner, and just see how independent we could be of other districts if we chose to.

Much credit is due the W.I. for their untiring efforts in arranging and getting arranged these splendid displays to help us to greater appreciation of this province of ours.

Of noble lineage and had along with his brothers and sisters maintained that heritage. This life was not the beginning nor is death the end, and deceased knew this fact. The speaker was glad that the community appreciated the life and labors of this man, and his good deeds were a monument to his life.

Bishop Walker was the concluding speaker, and he stated that deceased was heart and soul in the work of helping others, and playing the part of the Good Samaritan to the unfortunate. He had been a member of the Finance Committee of the Second Ward for years and was always energetic and active in revising ways and means to provide money for the erection of the new chapel and other enterprises that needed financial assistance. Quoting the Bible the speaker stated "That true religion and undefiled is this to visit the widows and fatherless in their affliction." This was the gospel of Wilford and he had lived it as few men do. On behalf of the family he thanked all who had in any way helped in the bereavement and stated that the family were all sincere and earnest in their labors and were greatly appreciated.

Bell bearers were: Parley, Asael, Arlo, Lealie all brothers, and Merrill Palmer and Delman O'Brien nephews of deceased.

The beautiful grey casket was covered with flowers and the rostrum backed with beautiful blooms which bore silent tribute to the esteem in which the deceased was held. The crowd present at the services and a cortege of nearly forty cars following the hearse to the cemetery was proof of his popularity and the fact that

Celebrate Go. Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Wall celebrated their golden wedding Tuesday Oct. 27th by having a family gathering at their home.

There were present Mr. and Mrs. Don Wall and family, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Wall and family, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Finch and family, and Mrs. Liz Wall and family. Two of their children, Lynn of Spokane, Wash., and Mrs. Jos. Harker of Portland Oregon were unable to be present.

The evening was spent in listening to the radio, the children also contributing by little songs and recitations. Mr. Wall in his usual humorous way recalled experiences of bygone days. A delicious supper was served. Several of the neighbors called and congratulated this happy couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Wall were married Oct. 27th 1881 in the endowment house Salt Lake City, Utah. To this union have been born 13 children, seven having died in infancy and George who died in Raymond seven years ago this coming November.

They also have 28 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

We all join in wishing them much joy and happiness through the remainder of the matrimonial journey.

Notable Records In Swimming Events

The following article will be of interest to Raymond people, because of the residence of the Nurse girls in the town and the splendid records they have made for themselves in England before coming to Canada, and the long record of wins in swimming events made by the family in England, will make interesting reading for all, and for this reason we are reproducing the following from an English paper carrying an account of a recent swimming contest at Grimsby in which some of the Nurse family took part:—

SUCCESSFUL FAMILY

The recent successes of the Nurse family in local championships have made me wonder if there is any other family of swimmers in this district who can rival them in the sport. I doubt it. After going through my own record book, I am almost prepared to put them against any others over a fixed distance.

There are six of them—one son and five daughters of Mr. J. C. Nurse—who have been very prominent in Grimsby and Cleethorpes swimming circles during the past ten years, and the record of their accomplishments is worthy of being preserved, because we are going to hear a great deal more of them ere their competition days are done.

Before going into the question of their records, I would like to pay tribute to their determination to make headway. None of them started out with great promise; indeed, in their early stages they were good members of "the awkward squad," but by dint of keen practice and a determination to improve style, each succeeding Nurse has marked a step forward, until now the younger ones face a distinctly promising career based upon the experience of the others.

STARTED AT SCHOOL

Richard the eldest son, started off as a school boy success by lifting the schools championship (except for breast stroke) in 1923-24, and going into Elysia S. C. he held its championship from 1925 to 1928. On transferring to the G. and C. United S. C. he people appreciated him.

The fact too, that very short notice was given of the definite time of the funeral prevented many from attending who otherwise would have been in attendance.

A number of members of the Mason lodge of Lethbridge were present at the services on Wednesday in honor of the deceased.

BIDDING TO MAKE GAME

Business at all times demands the finest qualities of those who make business their life's work. The qualities of leadership, courage, initiative, honesty, broadmindedness, understanding and intelligence among others, determine success or failure on the part of the individual or the nation—they are the intangibles of our assets and represent worth in as real a sense as do land and timber, mineral ore and factories.

For indeed what are these latter or of what avail, without the human qualities which make of them realities? Land of itself does not make a farm nor waterfalls electric power. It is the resourcefulness of man which is the very soul and lifeblood of business. Gold is not of value without the banker, of whom cannot be fashioned without the pattern at the wheel. We need to turn our minds at times upon these things and aim to seize the full import of their significance.

As far as the material assets of Canada are concerned we are as rich today as ever, as far as the immaterial are concerned we are, it is truly said, far richer. Events of the past two or three years have taught us many lessons, or at least should have; we are richer in experience than we were. If this premise is sound, and we thoroughly believe it to be so, therefore it is most reasonable to suggest that the future holds greater opportunities in store for us than it did a generation ago. The qualities and acumen possessed of the people are more developed and consequently we are more fitted to make advantageous use of the gifts with which this country is so liberally endowed. In the final analysis our national economic life will be just exactly what we, as Canadian business men, make it.

When, however, we witness in so many spheres around also unfortunate occurrences, when we ourselves also experience as individuals the effects of depressing influences in business, it does admittedly require courage unusual determination, to carry us ahead in these days and, it may be added a dominating intelligence in all things to make our progress the more secure. We would indeed be ridiculous if we allowed ourselves to become "chickens," the more so as there is not the remotest reason for any apprehension.

We have, on the other hand, seen the worst of the depression. It has spent its force. While its influences may still be felt in many quarters, in other spheres unmistakable signs of recovery are quite apparent. For our own part, we are definitely of the opinion that in days to come we shall speak of the depression of 1929-31 but that we shall refer to 1932 as a year of constructive effort. With prices readjusting themselves the world over with the purchasing habits of the people reappearing in less extravagant channels, with our financial life on a more sound rock-bottom basis, with our primary and progressive production at a more economical level, and with most encouraging signs of constructive endeavor along sound lines at last evident in the sphere of international economy, surely it may be said that the nations are beginning to fall in step for the onward march.

Will Canada lag behind or will she be in the van of progress? That will depend on every individual business man whether farmer, financier, industrialist or merchant. We must not be content with small achievement. There is every reason to consider that we hold the trump hand of opportunity and we would indeed be lacking in enterprise and acumen if we were content with a couple of "vicks." We should bid to make game for there can be no question of our fulfilling the contract with a winning score in the honors column.—Commerce of the Nation.

Several sheds were blown over at Taber last week in a high wind that visited that district. Our high winds have not been that high yet.

A farmer in Syracuse, Nebraska was surprised one morning when out in his field to notice his young pigs eating grasshoppers by the hundreds. He says the hogs are steadily gaining and the hoppers are beginning to diminish in numbers. A novel method of control indeed.

TO HIS SON

The following meditation, which touches the heartstrings, pictures a dad as he stands at the bedside of his son. Many magazines have copied this article, and we do not know the authors name, but it is universal in its appeal to mothers and daddies and sons everywhere:

"Listen son: I am saying this to you as you lie asleep, one little paw crumpled under your cheek, and the blond curls stickily wet on your damp forehead. I have often stolen into your room alone. Just a few minutes ago, as I sat reading my paper in the library, a hot, stifling wave of remorse swept over me. I could not resist it. Guiltily I came to your bedside.

"These are the things I was thinking, son: I had been cross to you. I scolded you as you were dressing for school because you gave your face merely a dab with a towel. I told you to task for not cleaning your shoes. I called out angrily when I found you had thrown some of your things on the floor.

"At breakfast I found fault too. You spilled things. You gaped down your food. You put your elbows on the table. You spread butter too thick on your bread. And as you started off to play and I made for my train, you turned and waved a little hand and called 'Good-bye, Daddy!' and I frowned and said in reply: 'Hold your shoulders back!'

"Then it began all over again in the late afternoon. As I came up the hill road, I spied you, down on your knees playing marbles. There were holes in your stockings. I humiliated you: before your boy friends by making you march ahead of me back to the house. Steelings were expensive—and if you had to buy them you would be more careful. Imagine that son, from a father. It was such stupid, silly logic.

"Do you remember, later, when I was reading in the library, how you came in, softly timidly with a sort of hunted look in your eyes. When I glanced up over my paper impatient at the interruption you hesitated at the door. 'What is it you want?' I snapped.

"You said nothing, but ran across in one tempestuous plunge and threw your arms around my neck and kissed me, again and again, and your small arms tightened with an affection that God had set blooming in your heart, and which even neglect could not wither. And then you were gone, pattering up the stairs.

"Well, son, it was shortly afterwards that my paper slipped from my hands and a terrible sickening fear came over me. Suddenly I saw myself as I really was, in all my horrible selfishness, and I felt sick at heart.

"What has habit been doing to me? The habit of complaining of finding fault, or reprimanding all of these were my rewards to you for being a boy. It was not that I did not love you; it was that I expected too much of youth. It was measuring you by the yardstick of my own years.

"And here was so much that was good and fine and true in your character. You did not deserve my treatment of you so. The little heart of you, was big as the dawn itself over the wide hills. And this was shown by your spontaneous impulse to rush in and kiss me good night. Nothing else matters tonight, son. I have come to your bedside in the darkness, and I have knelt there, choking with emotion and so ashamed.

"It is a feeble attempt. I know you would not understand these things if I told them to you during your waking hours, yet I must say what I am saying. I must burn sacrificial fires, alone, here in your bedroom, and make free confession. And I have prayed God to strengthen me in my resolve. Tomorrow I will be a real daddy! I will chum with you and suffer when you suffer and laugh when you laugh. I will bite my tongue when impatient words come. I will keep saying as if it were a ritual: 'He is nothing but a boy a little boy!'

"I am afraid I have visualized you as a man. Yet as I see you now, son crumpled and weary, in your cot, I see that you are still a baby. Yesterday you were in your mother's arms your head on her shoulder. I have asked too much too much!

"Dear boy, dear little son. A penitent kneels at your infant shrine here in the moonlight. I kiss the little fingers and the damp forehead.

Efforts are being made now to reorganize, or reorganize a Western Canada and Pacific Coast Hockey League and to include Calgary and Edmonton in the lineup of the teams. Lester Patrick was in Calgary this week talking things over with Rosie Helmer and Lloyd Turner. An artificial ice plant was also discussed.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By Edson R. White, Shawnee, Okla.
 ROGER D. LAPHAM, PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN-HAWAIIAN
 STEAMSHIP CO., SAYS:

THAT co-operation and group action have displaced uncontrolled competition and individualism in our modern business life and the exceptional efficiency of modern transportation agencies is mainly responsible for this.

The history of transportation comes very near being the history of the human race. Certainly its splendid advances are reflected in every phase of modern life. As men are brought closer to each other to each other geographically through swift trains and steamships and, latterly, airplanes and zepp; they are brought closer together in thoughts and ideas which are the basis of action.

When the courier and the stage-coach were the most rapid means of communication and transport, each territorial unit had to be sufficient unto itself. It produced what it was able to and did without the rest. Today, thanks to the development of modern transportation, we have territorial distribution of production, each section growing or manufacturing the things it can best grow or manufacture, and depending on the various agencies of transport-water rail and motor - for a quick and uninterrupted interchange of these products.

Society has been virtually made over by the development of the agencies of transportation, the various arms of which are much more complementary one to another than competitive, and each of which plays its part in welding our business, social and political structure into a single cohesive unit.

The vehicles of transport and communication are indispensable to modern civilization. Production and transportation are inseparable. A free moving of products from producer to consumer makes for the welfare and prosperity of all concerned. Interrupt this movement and everyone will suffer. Stop it entirely and our present business and social structure would be overthrown.

I repeat that swift, dependable transportation has welded us all into one great unit. Being a single unit we must act as a single unit, and so it is that the day of individualism has passed. It is as far removed as the ox team, the hand sickle and the stage-coach. WITH A MYRIAD OF INVENTIONS WIPING OUT GEOGRAPHICAL BARRIERS, BUSINESS, POLITICAL AND SOCIAL ISOLATION HAVE BEEN DESTROYED. AND THEREFORE NO MAN OR BUSINESS IS BIG ENOUGH TO PLAY A LONE HAND TODAY.

The Made in Alberta Dinner at the Opera House tonight will be worth all it costs and everyone should attend.

ONE MOTOR CAR FOR EVERY EIGHT PERSONS IN DOMINION

An increase of 44,240 motor vehicles registered in Canada for the year 1930 over the previous year is noted in the preliminary report of highways and motor vehicles issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. There were 1,239,888 vehicles registered on Dec. 31 of last year or one for every eight persons in the Dominion as compared with one for every 8.2 persons the previous year.

Ontario led the registrations with nearly half those of the rest of Canada, the number being 564,660 as compared with 178,976 in Quebec, which came second. Saskatchewan was third with 129,861. Alberta had 102,653. British Columbia was fifth with 98,943. Manitoba sixth with 79,305. Nova Scotia seventh with 43,036. New Brunswick eighth with 34,833 and Prince Edward Island ninth with 7,462 motor vehicles registered.

Island one to 11.6, New Brunswick one to 12.2, Nova Scotia one to 12.9 Quebec one to 15.3, and Yukon Territory one motor vehicle to every 17.2 people. — Western Motorism.

Regular Priesthood and Stake Board meetings were held here Sunday last and the attendance in all departments was very good.

The man was showing his fourth wife around the village. They visited the churchyard and paused before an elaborate tombstone which had been erected by the bridegroom. She read the inscription: "Here lies Susan, beloved wife of Thomas Jefferson; also Jane, beloved wife of Thomas Jefferson; also Mary, beloved wife of Thomas Jefferson." Leaning forward to see the bottom line she read: "Be Ye Also Ready."

A GUILTY MANNER

A Country school board was visiting a school, and the principal was putting his pupils through their paces.

"Who signed Magna Charta, Robert?" he asked, turning to one boy.

"Please, sir, 'twas't me," whimpered the youngster.

The teacher, in disgust, told him to take his seat, but an old tobacco-chewing countryman on the board was not satisfied. After a well directed aim at the cuspidor he said: "Call that boy back. I don't like his manner. I believe he did do it."

Christmas At Home

"In half a minute Mrs. Cratchit entered—flushed, but smiling proudly—with the pudding, like a speckled cannon-ball, so hard and firm, blazing in half of half a quarter of ignited brandy, and bedight with Christmas holly stuck into the top."

Not very many words, but in these few words Charles Dickens seems to have gathered together all the reasons why every year Canadians from all over the Dominion look towards England and the old-fashioned Christmas.

And the ghostly smell of that Christmas pudding, "like an eating-house and a pastrycook's next door to each other, with a laundress's next door to that!" has an influence on steamship passenger officials as they make up their sailing lists.

This year the Canadian Pacific has arranged four sailings from Saint John, N.B., designed to allow home-ward bound Canadians to reach even the remotest parts of the British Isles in time for the great English festival. They are, the Montclare for Glasgow, Belfast and Liverpool, December fifth, Duchess of Bedford to the same ports December 11th, Montrose to Cherbourg, Southampton and Antwerp December 12th, Duchess of Richmond to Glasgow, Belfast and Liverpool December 16th, for the real last-minute travellers.

THE GOVERNMENT BONUS OF 5c.
PER BUSHEL

(From Searle Grain Co.)

We have had a great many letters asking for our interpretation of different questions arising as to the distribution of the Government 5c. bonus and thinking you might be interested we are listing below a few of the questions asked on which we have had the Board of Grain Commissioners' interpretation.

Ques. No. 1. Where a farmer sells this year's wheat to another farmer for seed or feed, does he get the bonus?

Answer: Bonus only paid on wheat sold to licensed elevators or delivered over the platform for shipment to licensed grain dealers, where unloaded in a licensed mill or terminal and sold there. Wheat sold by a farmer to any other than a licensed elevator can under no circumstances receive the 5c. bonus.

Ques. No. 2. Is a farmer entitled to a bonus on wheat used for feed or seed?

Answer: No.

Ques. No. 3. Farmer owning land put in 1931, moved away August 31st, renting farm to a tenant on a 1-3 crop basis. In view of the owner having put crop in and renting same just before crop was cut, is not the owner putting in crop entitled to all or 1-3 of the wheat bonus?

Answer: No. Renter or tenant entitled to the full 5c. bonus on all the crop.

Ques. No. 4. A owns several quarter sections of land all of which are farmed by renters with part crop payment agreement. A decided to store his grain in his own granaries and refuses to sell it on the 1931 crop. Is the tenant entitled to the 5c. bonus on wheat delivered by him on his portion of the crop which A as owner stored in his granaries and keeps on his farm, and if A does not permit any grain marketed from his farm during the year bonus is in effect?

Answer: The Board of Grain Commissioners' ruling is that owners of land refusing to deliver his grain to the elevator so that his tenant may not obtain the bonus, is one for which there is no provision in the Act and unless some change in the legislation takes place the owner who is so disposed refuses his tenant right of obtaining bonus. This, however, would depend on what lease agreement he had with the tenant and the majority of these agreements call for delivery by the tenant of a portion of the crop at the local elevator.

Ques. No. 5. Suppose the tenant has contracted with owner of land and the tenant is to deliver half of crop to the elevator for sale and the owner of the land refuses to allow the tenant to deliver crop and sell same and with the owner and the tenant's grain held off the market during this crop, how is the tenant going to get his bonus?

Answer: The Grain Commissioners advise in regard to the above, as well as in question No. 4, that it is their opinion that the owner of the land could not refuse to allow the tenant to deliver the crop, if the documents between them are the usual tenant and owner agreements.

Ques. No. 6. Should a farmer deliver his grain to an elevator company grade storage tickets and at the time receive bonus certificate covering each load, could he demand a return of the grain and keep the 5c. bonus?

Answer: Regulation No. 11 of the Act reads as follows: "If a grower has received a bonus certificate in respect of any wheat delivered by him and he desires to resume or regain possession of the said wheat, the person in possession thereof shall not re-deliver the same to him unless the grower surrenders the bonus certificate aforesaid or pays over to the person in possession the sum of five cents per bushel, which sum shall for twelfth be remitted to the Board."

Ques. No. 7. A is owner of land, A rents to B. A supplies seed, one-half the twine, pays one-half the threshing and gets one-half the crop at the machine. Does A receive the bonus for his share of the crop, or is B entitled to the bonus on the whole crop?

Answer: The Board of Grain Commissioners' ruling on the above is B gets the bonus on the entire crop.

Ques. No. 8. A sells land to B on contract, B to deliver one-half the crop as payment of land. Does B get the bonus on the whole crop grown.

Answer: The Board of Grain Commissioners' ruling is Yes, B gets the entire bonus.

Ques. No. 9. Land owned by an estate and estate supplies all land, machinery, horses, two-thirds of the twine, two thirds of the hauling cost of the grain to elevator and contract with tenant states that two-thirds of grain must be delivered to estate, and does the estate get all the bonus or two-thirds of the bonus.

Answer: Board of Grain Commissioners' ruling is tenant receives the bonus on the entire wheat raised irrespective of the destination of the wheat or the contract. The estate receives none of the bonus.

NOTABLE RECORDS IN SWIMMING EVENTS

Became its champion in 1930 and 31. Prior to this he picked up the Lincolnshire half-mile in 1929, after several times being in the first three of this and the quarter-mile event.

"Dick," who has never been affected by defect, was placed tenth out of 310 starters in the Trent swim this summer.

Contemporary with him his sisters Beatrice and Dorothy were prominent in local events—but Dorothy was always unfortunate in being just a shade slower than her sister, to whom she had to play second fiddle.

Beatrice won the Lines, 220 yards women's championship in 1922-3-5, and the 100 yards championship of Grimsby and Cleethorpes in 1923-5. The following year these two sisters went to Alberta, Canada, where it may be remembered Beatrice saved a child from drowning.

Mabel started well as schools champion in 1924-5-6, and by winning the Elysia Club title from 1925 to 1928. Both in 1927-8 she won the 50 yards junior women's championship of Grimsby and Cleethorpes, and this year crowned her successes by emulating her elder sister in the 220 yards country race, and by winning the championship of the Cleethorpes Ladies United S. C.

FOLLOWING TRADITION

Jessie, who was a school girl up to three years ago, held the schools championship in 1927-8, and followed the example of Mabel by winning the Elysia Club championship in 1929-30.

Last year she had a try for the 50 yards local junior championship, but, knowing that her sister was the likely winner, she had to be satisfied with trying out the course in anticipation of the time when the age limit would give her the chance of keeping the cup in the family.

Then Daisy came along to maintain the family tradition by lifting the schools championship (except for breast stroke) in 1929. She went a step further this year when, as the junior champion of the Cleethorpes Ladies United, she created a record for the race, and during the same season took over the 50 yards junior cup for Grimsby and Cleethorpes, which Jessie had to relinquish on passing the age limit.

Truly a fine record, which is topped by the father, who holds the Royal Humane Society's certificate for saving life in the Alexandra Dock.

DOES YOUR CHILD SEE?

When a child is blind in both eyes the condition is, of course recognized. There are many children, however, who have defective sight, which fact is unknown to their parents. That is so is evidenced by the number of children entering school, who are found by school physicians to have defective eyesight.

The good work done by the school health services does not provide for the pre-school child or for the child who attends a school where there is no school physician or nurse.

A child should be able to recognize a picture or object one-half an inch square at twenty feet. Each eye is tested separately, one eye being covered with a card during the test of the other. For near vision, a picture book may be used. If there is any appreciable defect in either eye, whether for near or distant vision, the family physician should be consulted.

Cross-eye is a condition which is frequently neglected because of the parents' ignorance as to its significance. Children with this condition should be placed under medical care with out delay. A cross-eyed child sees double. This causes confusion and so the mind turns itself to pay attention only to the image that comes to it through the straight eye. This results in one eye's being developed through use and the other's becoming useless because it is not used.

Unless the condition is properly treated early, the child loses the use of one eye and is actually blind in that eye. If the child is treated between two and three years of age, the most or all of his vision can be saved the longer treatment is delayed, the more vision is lost. Cross-eye is a condition which does not correct itself. Children do not grow out of it.

If the child is placed sitting, facing the parent, and arm's length away, with one eye covered by the parent's hand, and is made to look at the parent's nose with the uncovered eye, the parent will find that on uncovering the other eye, it is either looking at the nose, which means that no cross-eye is present or that it moved in or out or remained crossed in or out which is an evidence that cross-eye is present.

Your children will appreciate, in later years, the care you gave now to this special organ.
